

EKEBYGYMNASIET

Ekebygymnasiet in Uppsala, Sweden is a modern upper secondary school and an adult education school which provides vocational education for 450 students. The school is situated in the renovated buildings of the old pottery "Ekeby bruk". Ekeby bruk was closed down in the seventies and the school has been here since 1985.

We have our own restaurant with a top modern kitchen where we cook and serve high quality food to guests from all over Uppsala. We also produce our own school lunches. The students provide various products such as bread, patisserie, meat and ready-made meals for our shop which is open to the public.

Our goal is a school characterized by creativity, activity, responsibility and respect.

We have four different national programmes and an adult education:

The Electrical and Energy Programme

This programme is available for those who wish to work with systems for automatic production, energy, environmental and hydro engineering or computers and communication. It is possible to take a job directly on graduation; another option is to continue studying at a vocational university college. It is also possible to study extra courses that enable one to continue further studies at university level. Our specialization is electrical engineering

Electrical engineering

Students learn how to install, maintain and repair electrical plants, electrical grids, alarms and systems for TV and computers. This specialization offers work opportunities for example, as a lift technician, installation electrician or alarm technician.

The Hotel and Tourism Programme

This programme is available for those who wish to work in hotels or with tourism and conference activities. It is possible to take a job directly on graduation; another option is to continue studying at a vocational university college. It is also possible to study extra courses that enable one to continue one's studies at university level. Ekebygymnasiet provides two different specializations

Hotel and conference

Students learn about the different departments in hotels and about conference operations. They practice service, how to deal with guests and how to organize, plan and implement meetings and events. This specialization offers work opportunities for example reception and floor service, conferences, exhibitions and trade fairs, events and sales.

Tourism and travel

Students learn about tourist information, organization and travel planning, activities and experiences, destinations and routes and develop their skills in providing service and dealing with clients. This specialization offers work opportunities for work in tourist information, guiding, experiences, activities, travel planning, travel agencies and sales.

Apprenticeship Training Programme

At Ekebygymnasiet we also have vocational education in the form of apprenticeship education. In vocational programmes, it is possible to choose an upper secondary apprenticeship education. Students who choose this option carry out a major part of their education at one or more workplaces. Apprenticeship education has the same goals and knowledge requirements as the other education provided in upper secondary schools. In order to strengthen cooperation between the vocational programmes of the upper secondary school and working life, there are both national and local programme councils.

The Restaurant and Food Programme

This programme is available to those who wish to work with cooking, restaurant service and food production. It is possible to take a job directly on graduation; another option is to continue studying at a vocational university college. It is also possible to study extra courses that enable one to continue studies at university level. Ekebygymnasiet provides two different specializations

Baking and confectionary

Students learn about the handicraft skills necessary in baking. This specialization offers opportunities for work as, for example, a baker or pastry chef.

Kitchen and service

Students learn about cooking in restaurants, service, bar work and the tourism/entertainment industry. This specialization offers work opportunities for example, as a cook, delicatessen worker or as waiting staff.

Adult education

Ekebygymnasiet also has an adult education in cooking, restaurant and service.
